The service between Edmonton and Edson will remain as at present, which is a train leaving at 6:30 a. m., and arriving at Edson at 10:20 p. m. daily except Sunday.

It is the company's intention to bid for the through traffic and as the road-bed, low grades and first class trains they are to meet all competitors. They have everything put in splendid condition for this service and the equipment much increased to meet the rapid growing traffic.

DAILY MAIL SERVICE STARTS

The daily mail service on the northern section of the Toilef-Calgary branch was put into operation on Monday last, and mail is now received on the night train. Mail is despatched on the train going north in the morning.

At present two lock bags are despatched, one to Camrose and the other to Edmonton, and mail is also received from the above offices in the evening.

A mail car will in all probability be placed on this line when the road into Calgary is completed and through trains are running.

LIBERALS TAKE ALL FIVE SEATS

According to reports the Liberals have won all the contests in the five by-elections held last Monday.

In Edmonton, C. W. Cross was returned by over 500 majority. Joe Knight, the Socialist candidate, will lose his deposit.

Jno. R. Boyle has a majority of over 800 in Sturgeon district. Clarendon constituency elected M. Mackenzie by a very small majority.

In Cardston, M. Woolf has a majority of about 80. The returns from Sedgewick give G. Stewart a big majority, the total being probably 800.

Board of Trade meets next Tuesday evening, June 4th.

Local and General

Mrs. C. F. Bentley and Masters Newcomb and Jack are visiting in Edmonton for a few days.

H. J. Goster has moved from Lamerton and taken up quarters in R. Heriman's office on Carroll avenue.

Rev. McIntosh is attending the annual Methodist conference in Edmonton this week. There will be no service in the Methodist church next Sunday, June 2nd.

A number of the business men are figuring on making a trip to Camrose on June 18th, to view the exhibition on the "made in Canada" train, which is now on tour throughout the West.

The Gas Power Age, a magazine published in the interest of advanced agriculture, good roads, etc., is the only magazine in Canada that is an educative factor on the internal combustion engine—gas power. Gas Power Age deals with management of automobiles, motor boats, motor cycles, and the problem of scientific farming. The subscription is $1.00 a year. Samples copies may be had at THE JOURNAL OFFICE.

Frank Miller, of Camrose, was a business visitor in town today (Thursday).

The Masonic Grand Lodge of Alberta opened its sessions in Edmonton on Wednesday. Over two hundred delegates from all parts of the province are in attendance.

A severe rain storm, which later turned to hail, passed over Mirror on Tuesday evening, but no damage is reported. The crops through the country are showing wonderful growth, and the weather has been all that could be desired, which should result in a record crop for this part of Alberta.

A proclamation has been issued declaring June 3rd a legal and bank holiday, though the observance of the day as a general holiday will be optional with the public throughout the Dominion.

The municipal by-law for the erection of a $25,000 flour mill was carried in Wainwright on Monday, not one vote being registered against it.

L. Y. Clark of Lamerton has gone into the round house and started work as a machinist.

Mrs. A. Cadieu, of Toronto, spent Thursday with A. D. Carey, train master, at Mirror.

A meeting of the school trustees of Lamerton S. D. No. 492, was held on Saturday to open tenders for the conveyance of scholars from Mirror to Lamerton school. Two tenders were presented, but were considered too high, and W. Merkley was appointed to interview the parties concerned and endeavor to get a lower figure.

Nelson Reynolds, of Toronto, spent Thursday with A. G. Suggitt.

Jas. Steele and family have moved into the Victor house on Lois avenue.

J. Watson, painter, has the contract for painting Jacques Bros' dwelling and barns and will be busy for the next few weeks. The barns will be painted red, and the house a walnut stain with cream trimmings. Mr. Watson is an A. 1 workman and his ability to apply the paint brush is giving general satisfaction.

Jas. Steers was a visitor in Baddeck this week.

J. R. Baker, of Wainwright, is building a house on lot 15, block 72. Mr. Baker is a plaster by trade.

D. Hadden, who has lately sold out his interest in the Hadden Shingle Co., at Cloverdale, B. C., was a one-day visitor in town last week. Mr. Hadden was surprised at the growth of town and was much taken with the surroundings, and to use his own expression: "It looks good to me."

W. M. Beamish, of North Portal, Sask., was in Mirror last week looking over some property he purchased, and was well pleased with his investment.

L. S. Kroetch, of Spokane, Wash., spent a few days with H. and Mrs. Kiesel last week.

TWO NEW SCHOOL SITES RESERVED

Word has been received by the local agent of the Transcontinental Townsite Co., H. J. Rayner, that the Land Department of the Government thinks it advisable and necessary to reserve two more school sites in the town of Mirror. In order to provide for the proper educational facilities, two blocks, one in the south and the other in the north portions of the town have been reserved. The numbers of the blocks are 222 and 132 respectively.

This request on the part of Government shows how the future prospects of Mirror are regarded by those in closest touch with the situation. Mirror now has three blocks reserved for school sites, and it will be an easy matter in time to come, to undertake the building of schools that will give accommodation to a large number of scholars.

The location of these two new school sites should make the property around each enhance in value and certainly should make it more attractive to purchasers.

$75,000 FIRE IN WAINWRIGHT

On Monday morning, May 27th, at 5 o'clock fire was discovered in Primrose's restaurant, Wainwright, and in several hours one of the most important corners in town was a pile of smoking ashes. The buildings destroyed were the restaurant, auditorium block and moving picture house, Lush's store, Small Bros' furniture store, Bissell's clothing store, Union bank and Mahan's pool room. Not more than $10,000 worth of contents were saved and the insurance may reach $30,000. An apartment block over the store was literally filled with sleeping people at the time of the fire, and a number just managed to escape in their night robes. One party was aroused by his bed clothes being on fire, and it was nothing short of a miracle that twenty or more roomers escaped with their lives.

The hard work of the citizens and visitors was all that saved the whole business section from complete destruction.

The "Made in Canada" train while touring the West, apparently does not leave the C. P. R. system. There are still a few spots in the west not on the route that might be interested in the exhibit.

Exhibition Train

The "Made-in-Canada" exhibition train which is now running through the West is acquainting the new citizens of Western Canada with the fact that Canadian made goods are equal in value, quality and variety to those they know in their old homes, whether in the United States or in the old land.

The train will be composed of ten exhibition cars, one sleeping car and one dining car, and the latter will be used as a lecture room. The tour commenced at Montreal on the 15th of May and is now in the West, where one hundred cities and towns in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will be visited, the train reaching Montreal on the return journey July 2nd.

The object of this exhibition train is to give first-hand information regarding the varied nature of Canada's manufacturing industries to the people who have settled in the West during the past ten years. It is hoped by the organizers that the moving object lesson will show in a graphic manner what the development of manufacturing industries in the West will mean to the people, especially the farmers, of western Canada.

In this connection, a particularly interesting feature of the train will be the Winnipeg cars.

It was expected that the manufacturers of Winnipeg would take only one car, but they have shown such keen interest in the proposition that they are now asking for a second car, a request that is regarded by eastern manufacturers as a pretty fair offer of the industrial development that is taking place in the West.

Some firms have taken portions of a car and others have reserved a whole car. One coach will be fitted up like a factory in operation. Another will have a composite exhibit resembling the room of a house, one exhibitor supplying the carpets, another the furniture, a third the wall paper and so on. The lecturer will be T. H. Bace, of Mitchell, Ont., who has represented Canada at World's Fairs at Christchurch, New Zealand, at Melbourne, Australia, at Glasgow, Scotland, and in Belgium.

The Ontario Wind Engine and Pump Co., Ltd., who are represented in Mirror, by J. N. Mitchell, will have an exhibit on this train, and it is the intention of Mr. Mitchell to visit the exhibition train at Camrose on June 18, where he will make a personal examination of the different lines manufactured by the above company.

VALUE OF GOOD ROADS

Some of the advantages of good road over bad ones, cited C. O. Raine, Master of the Missouri State Grange, are as follows:

The ability of children to attend school regularly, although possibly living a considerable distance from the school house.

The possibility of securing quick medical assistance in the event of sickness in the family.

The possibility of family attending church and enjoy social intercourse with their neighbors and friends, both in the country and in town.

The possibility of utilizing time during bad weather by attending to business and social duties away from home day and night.

The rental value of the farm. The ability to market produce when it is scarce because those living on bad roads cannot get to market.

The increase in the tonnage in the hauling of produce to market and the return haul of family necessities.

The increase in the value of farms per acre and the possibility of selling with readiness not known to those holding lands not adjacent to good roads.

The importance given to the country by reason of its being inhabited by people who build and maintain good roads with pleasure and profit to themselves.

PRINCE RUPERT, THE PACIFIC SEAPORT

Prince Rupert, British Columbia, the new seaport on the Pacific coast which has been founded by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company for the western terminus of the national Transcontinental Railway through Canada, continues to demonstrate stability with which the enormous resources in that part of the world have endowed her. The population of about five thousand people who have settled there, thus forming the beginning of this future city, have shown their faith in its unquestioned future by building permanent homes, and business establishments in almost every line of trade and commerce. Not alone is the faith confined to the citizens of Prince Rupert, but foreseeing the important factor she must early become in the commerce of the world the leading banks, viz: the Bank of Montreal, Canadian Bank of Commerce, Bank of British North America, Royal Bank of Canada, have located branches there. In all our new Canadian towns and cities in the west and on the Pacific Coast, the buying and selling of real estate constitutes an item of local importance and value, which however, in the case of Prince Rupert has extended beyond the confines of the locality itself, and even beyond the Province and Dominion to other parts of the world, from which large sums of money have been sent for investments and development. When the first lots in the townsite were placed on the market and sold a little more than two years ago the prices realized exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine by reaching figures many times several hundred per cent, in numerous instances as much as one thousand per cent above what was estimated to be a fair valuation, and events since that time have given no cause to change the confidence then shown, as reports have just been received of the additional section of the townsite containing about six hundred lots, which there was an increasing demand and which realized prices about two hundred per cent above what was considered a conservative valuation. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Ry. through to the Pacific Coast is rapidly approaching completion, when trans-Pacific steamships will sail from this new seaport, and in order to be prepared for the increased accommodation and facilities that will be required large additional capital expenditures will be made within the next two years to provide commodious hotel accommodations and also a dry dock and ship repairing plant, the latter of which will be constructed under the subsidy granted by the Dominion government.

During the past year the principal thoroughfares in business section of the city have been constructed to grade, the extensive plans are at present receiving the serious consideration of the city council, for sanitary improvements in the way of heat, light, power and water, and from the energy which has already been shown by the citizens there can be no question that her many natural advantages will be availed of in building a city at Prince Rupert that will be a model of utility?

KEEPING HIS HAND IN

The hanger of the Calgary Industrial Exhibition, June 28th to July 5th, is being distributed. The illustration depicts a cowboy, whose occupation has presumably been cut off by the encroachments of the grain grower, "keeping his hand in" by roping a sheaf of wheat from among several shown on the opposite side of a barbed-wire fence. The delight of the cowboy in the success of his achievement is equalled by the seeming reluctance of the inanimate sheaf to be drawn towards its natural enemy and by the terror of the horse at witnessing the frivolous nature of his rider's employment.

Anyone wishing a copy of the hanger can have one mailed by writing to E. L. Richardson, Manager Calgary Industrial Exhibition, Victoria Park, Calgary, Alta.

CHOOSING GOOD BEEF CATTLE.

Not every man or every farm is adapted to the raising of beef cattle, and those that succeed with the best breeds, would usually raise other fallers with dairy cattle, writes an Ohio stock raiser in the American Agriculturist. There are three essentials, and any two without the third will mean failure in raising beef. These three are good breed, good feed and good care.

In laying the foundation for a herd remember the best is none too good.

THE DAIRYMAN.

At least three weeks before cows are due to calve the beefy feed should be discontinued. From any cause a cow is very thin or weak she should receive special strengthening food. Winter corn and alfalfa mixed in equal parts will insure the best combination to give a strengthening effect.

Keep the young calves warm if you are obliged to put up a special shelter for them, and put blankets on them.

The milk used for feeding the calves should be scalded regularly every time they are used.

Cold rains are much harder on cows than dry cold. Hang cold protectors to the udder. Provide dry shelter.

Turn separator with a steady and uniform speed and send down with skimmer on water at end of separation.

LAMENESS IN HORSES.

Detection of the Seat of the Trouble is Often a Difficult Matter.

Lameness in horses is caused in a great number of ways and may be due to many reasons. It is not wise rashly to jump to conclusions when trying to cure it. See the London Live Stock Journal. It may be due to diseases of the joints or to tenderness of the muscles or tendons quite disconnected with the joints, or it may be connected with the foot only. For instance, in the majority of cases when lameness occurs in the hind leg there is something wrong with the foot, but lameness in the front legs generally means there is something wrong with the foot joints.

It is not enough to assume that when you find the seat of the lameness because a certain part of the leg is not, for the shoulder may be bad, although the lameness is due to the foot. The proper way is to reckon up all the symptoms that appear, and then come to a conclusion. It is not always easy to detect whether the fore or the hind limb is the trouble, but a good guide is often afforded by watching how the horse stands.

If he fore leg is lame he will stand with his hind legs under the abdomen, resting alternately on each fore leg. And another thing to notice is that every time he moves he lifts his head up in a painful, unlooked way. But if it is the back leg he stands in just the opposite way and keeps his head down and tends gingerly or else he walks on three legs.

One is, to make the mistake when trying to discover the seat of the only method of discovering lameness.

When one sees an animal with long legs, long in the coupling, long joints and long head, and will show you a hard neck. Select well grown animals with strong constitution, quiet disposition and of the best blood lines. Remember of the police line, the under side, the legs and bristles well formed. The neck should be of medium length and well tapered to a neat throatlatch. The head should be rather short and wide between the eyes; the body should be medium length, long and deep and supported by four short, medium heavy boned legs.

Choose one animal with long legs, long in the coupling, long joints and long head, and will show you a hard neck. The Horse's Shoulders.
At the completion of every day's work the shoulders should be sprayed with cold water. This is only a man's work, and if practiced a short time the horse will show increased activity. The collar should be worn the hames buckle tight around the collar, and the tugs should be of even length. This insures an even pull and a minimum amount of friction. When putting the collar on be careful that all of the mane is removed from under it, as the rubbing of the hair under it is one of the main causes of sore shoulders. A pair of spring whiffletrees is an excellent thing to relieve a team from the constant jar of the "working" wagon, and the use of them in themselves also saves sore shoulders. In hot weather work the horse every day. If there few points were kept in mind there would be little need of treating sore shoulders in the stables in National Stockman.

THE BROOD SOW.

Look well now to the brood sows. If a sow is too fat reduce her feed and give more exercise.

Be sure the feeders are in position in the farrowing pens to prevent the sows from getting into the young pigs.

As farrowing time draws near do not feed any corn to the brood sows. Too much corn has caused the loss of many a pig, either of age and often the sow as well.

The brood sows should have shallow beds of straw cut to short lengths. A deep bed will often cause the loss of a number of pigs.

If a sow is restless or jumps up when the pigs are nursing, examine the teats for sharp teeth. If any are found nip them off.

If all goes well the farrowing time the feed should be gradually increased after three or four days to supply the increasing demands of the pigs.

Give the sows plenty of clean water to drink. Take the care of.

A Veteran of the Light Brigade

A War Story

By F. A. MITCHEL

During the war between the states an Englishman named Larkins, who had been a sergeant in the British army, came over to America to seek service with the Federal army. If he failed he would try the Confederacy. A soldier of fortune, he had no preferences, though in England the people were overwhelmingly in favor of the north.

Larkins had papers to prove his British citizenship, which enabled him to join either in the north or in the south, as he pleased. He came over to a blockade runner to Charleston, N. C., and, going to Richmond, Va., made application for a commission in the Federal army. He was offered one, but by this time exhaustion had begun to show itself in the Confederacy, especially in a financial way, and Larkins was not pleased with the prospect of enlistment in its service. So he concluded to try for a commission in the Federal army.

Having declined the southern offer, he asked for a pass to go through the lines to Washington, telling the authorities that he was a man who had been called home to England. It was for a while, and he left for the army of Northern Virginia, at that time encamped between the two capitals, in the fall of 1862.

After having been passed through the lines, to work his way northward, the route he desired to take lay through Fredericksburg, and examined upon the road was a division commanded by a general whom he will call Beaumont.

Presented his pass to the other, telling him at the same time that he was a British subject, and was ready to consider for the reason that the southerners were constantly hoping that the British government would interfere in their behalf, and they were always ready to show attention to such English persons as came among them.

General Beaumont asked great interest in John Larkins, regretting that he had not been able to get the south of his service. The general told him that if he would remain in the north, a commission would appoint him to a position on his staff. The Englishman was tempted, knowing that he must take his pass in despite Confederate currency, he agreed to his resolution, assuming the general that his recall was imperative.

A number of officers were introduced to Larkins, who looked upon him with considerable interest. This he attributed to the fact that he had told the general that he had fought in the Chinese war and took part in the celebrated charge of the Light Brigade, which he gave a vivid description. Whatever the cause, the Englishman was much pleased with his treatment, and when he was urged to hurry away he felt disposed to linger in his present surroundings.

Every one had heard of the charge that had terrified the world and had been commemorated by the British poet laureate Alfred Tennyson, so that one who had taken part in it was especially interesting to soldiers.

Larkins had reached General Beaumont's headquarters in time for lunch and was welcomed by the general with much with him and his staff. During the afternoon Beaumont invited the Englishman to dine with him, and in the evening the chief of staff, Captain Carter, asked the visitor to dine with him to call upon a southern family living in the vicinity. Larkins was not what would be considered in England a gentleman and demurred at the invitation, but the general urged him to make the acquaintance of at least one household of southern ladies while in America, which he consented.

Larkins that evening met Caroline Fletcher, a captivating southern girl, who had only to smile upon him to make him fall in love with her. When he told her that he was simply passing through the lines and would go north the next day she pouted and insisted on a promise that he would return the following evening. Larkins told her that he would not return, and she was left to her own devices.

The next day he was shown more attention by the dining ladies and in the evening called on Miss Fletcher. She invited him to a veranda, and he then began to ask him on whose side of the American conflict his sympathies were. Larkins was silent for a while, but he had no preference; whereupon she requested since he said he would not return, that he would call on her the following day. Larkins was told that he would call on her the following day.

Larkins knew well that if caught by the Confederates while en route to Washington he would be sent to the military prison at Richmond. He decided to be the lazier of the message. The lady looked much disappointed, but forebore to press the matter and begged that he would not betray her. Larkins promised, and that ended the episode.

The next day the British said he would take his departure. He was informed that he must be sent through the lines with a flag of truce, and the situation was not just then fitted for the dispatching of such a flag. The enemy was restless, and there might be fighting at any moment. So Larkins was obliged to content himself with waiting until he was more agreeable as before the situation that had been shown on him were discontinued. He had been furnished with a furlough to avoid the same interest as formerly.

During that day one of the officers brought up to him a citizen whom he introduced, exulting on the ex-Confederate's experience in the Crimea. The man looked at him closely, made some complimentary remarks and withdrew. From that time Larkins began to realize that he was under surveillance.

"You won't find the Fletchers at home today," This was said in a half confidential way, as if meaning, "Stay where you are, Larkins, said nothing, but turned and returned to his tent."

THE WANDERERS

Not long ago a sperm whale came ashore on the coast of the Gulf of Mexico. The animal, which was sixty-three and one-half feet long, had involved in the mud shallows near Sabine, Texas, and was suffocated. A naturalist from the University of Texas, who was informed by wire of this event, found, on his arrival, that the whale had been towed ashore. It made careful measurements of all its dimensions. The circumference of the body in front of the pectoral fins was thirty-seven feet. It was found that the whale was an and "bull" which had been driven from the water by the younger whales, and straying off by itself, had probably been driven into the mud shallows while in pursuit of a school of cuttlefish or squid.

The Canadian River is not navigable and during most of the year is only a small wandering creek in a wide valley. The alligator had been in the neighborhood at least three years before its capture. It is believed that the animal was in the museum of the University of Oklahoma, when it was first seen. It also commemorated by a life-like model.

That Reminds Me

Agnes: Was Emily's operation a success?

Blady: Glorious! She got fifteen presents, a hundred dozen roses and had her husband's love.

"Will you take a ticket for a goat that I'm raffling now?"

"But Michael, I have no use for a goat."

"That's no use; but you probably wouldn't win it."

"You look annoyed. What's the matter?"

"Bertha told me a secret the other day and I can't tell you what it is."

"Why not?"

"Why forget it?"

Mrs. Frost: The barnyard looted your place, didn't they?

Mrs. Snow: Yes, dear, and the worst of it is they took the last sheep I had.

Mrs. A.—Well, if it isn't Mrs. B. What a stranger you are! Why, it took five years since I saw you.

Mrs. A.—Yes. Why haven't you been to see me?

Mrs. A.—O dear! you know how bad the weather been.

Malcolm: Give me a life of your age, I'll give you a comfortable one.

Phemmy: What was it?

Malcolm:—Some of my dates; don't you remember?

Phemmy: No! I never did have any memory for dates.

Two young girls were drinking tea and talking over the telephone.

One said: "I have a beautiful ring on my white hand."

"Well, Jack and I are to be married."

"That," said the other girl, "I thought you had thrown Jack over."

"Oh, no, I did," the first girl replied; "but—do you know how a girl feels?"

One of the young courtiers of Maine a case was called that had long been in litigation. The chief justice—who at that time was Judge Peters—thought it impracticable to try the case longer.

He viewed the parties to refer the matter. After due deliberation they agreed, agreeing to refer the case to these honest men. With a grave mien, in perfect keeping with judicial dignity, Judge Peters said that the case involved certain legal points which would require one of the referees, at least, to have some knowledge of law; therefore he would suggest that the property of their selecting one lawyer and two honest men!

A prisoner was being tried in an American court for murder, evidence against him purely circumstantial; that of a hat found near the scene of the crime—an ordinary round black hat, but with a band of gold, and with a feather in the band.

So the man was acquitted. Just as he was leaving the dock, with the most touching humility and simplicity, he said:

"If you please, my lord, may I have my hat?"

Great Cheate's talent for multiplicity of wits was well known to all. He was a great deal, but which not only sounded well but helped to create a jury of impression on the jury. On one occasion, a man of fortune, a millionaire, came against which a claim had been brought for the loss of a ship which was declared by the defense to be utterly unseaworthy. Mr. Cheate made the following speech by looking at his notes, these were the words:

"And, gentlemen, overabundant with her well-nigh priceless cargo, and carry on her past precious freight, the Columbia, she, when started on her voyage, paddled but perdition—a coffin, but no ship!"

"Mars Darrest, dar! he had me up to his ears in Mars!"

"I don't suppose you were, gully—was Mars Moses?" asked the colonel.

"Tah, yah, yah, yah," said Moses. "I was guilty of dancin', and dey proved it to me on me too, but I come clear. My friends stuck to me close; and, after that, when dey signed dat death certificate, my friends all got up, and testified dat, though I was 'dancin', it was 'dancin' dat I did it on me. "Yes," said Hildat, getting very red in the face, "I would have liked to come to blows. I would have liked to come to blows. I would have liked to come to blows."

"Really," said Tomkins. "Who was it grabbed you from behind and held you back?"

"The young man waited for the millionaire's reply."

"You brought up for wanting to marry my daughter," said the latter. "And now you are waiting for the young man and she can wait long enough."

The youth brightened up.

The most common form of sore shoul der is the result of a scalding. The shoulder becomes tender and red, probably from a scalding. The skin becomes reddened, and soon in these cases, as in other forms of sore shoul der, the proper course is to give rest and treatment.

One of the best remedies for sore shoul der is to use a liniment. The liniment should be applied to the shoul der three or four times a day. Various means are taken to relieve pressure upon the sore parts. Some use pads with holes in them, a dressing, or a brace.

HAIL INSURANCE

"No, I Don't Need It. Never Had Any Hail Loss In Our District."

Every season thousands of Western Canada Farmers say this and do not insure. Hundreds of them lose their Crops by Hail, and regret their dependance on what had been. Some districts undoubtedly, are less subject to Hail than others, but our experience with each succeeding season proves the fallacy of believing that any District is Hail-Proof.

If your Crop is Insured, you have no need to worry, for in case of Loss, you have your Policy to fall back on. If you are hailed out you can easily Pay the small Premium.

It is a Business Proposition. Think it over, and you will see that it is figured along strict business lines, and you cannot afford to be without the Protection.
